1875-1876

1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the train was the cold air. It felt like a blanket of ice.

2. The snow was falling so fast that I couldn't see more than a few feet ahead of me.

3. I tried to walk faster, but my feet were slipping on the frozen ground. I was losing my balance.

4. The wind was howling, and the snow was stinging my face. I wanted to turn back, but I knew I had to go on.

5. I was alone in the world, and I felt a sense of isolation that I had never experienced before.

6. The snow piled up around my ankles, making it difficult to take any steps. I was struggling to move forward.

7. I was starting to feel hopeless. I didn't know how long this would last, and I didn't know if I would ever see my family again.

8. I was so tired that I could barely keep my eyes open. I was drifting in and out of consciousness.

9. I was still there, still waiting, still hoping. I was still alive, and I was still breathing.
